HIDDEN AGENDA

World Kitchen cooking classes at Gallery 37 Center for the Arts, 66 E. Randolph St., 312-742-8497; cityofchicago.org/tourism/CulturalCenter

Dish it out

★ Check it out if you ... have someone you want to impress with a homemade meal, want to feel a little more comfortable in the kitchen or are interested in learning to prepare some unusual dishes to spice up your normal routine.

The details: The three-hour classes run from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays with events currently scheduled through Dec. 6. The theme changes every week, with upcoming class subjects including Moroccan cuisine and a Columbus Day Italian cooking lesson.

Judith Dunbar Hines, culinary director for the Chicago Department of Cultural Affairs, has 32 years of teaching experience, and she leads hands-on programs to help teach basic cooking skills to both longtime cooks and beginners. Classes are limited to 21 people, so booking in advance is recommended, though they'll keep a waiting list in case you get shut out of one that sounds interesting. Classes tend to be mostly female and serve a wide age range. Because most of the guest chefs, kitchen assistants and dishwashers are volunteers, prices are kept low, at $30 a class.

The payoff: Enjoying a meal made with your new skills.

World Kitchen classes are designed to help people feel more at ease in the kitchen.

401-KO'D?

With the turmoil in the financial services sector, you might be concerned about the safety of all that money you've allowed to be deducted from your paycheck and invested in a 401(k) or other retirement account.

Q: What safety measures are in place to protect the money I have invested in my company's 401(k) account?

A: The federal government has established rules for the people running your 401(k) plan, whether it's company officials—common in small companies—or a provider working with your company to administer the retirement plan.

Assets held in your company's 401(k) account are not insured in the way the government-run FDIC protects bank accounts or the industry-run SIPC protects brokerage funds.

Government regulations do require 401(k) funds to be held in a trust separate from their employer accounts and from the companies that manage 401(k) plans. The trust funds are overseen by investment managers, who must carry insurance designed to help protect a company from a fraudulent loss due to embezzlement or other misconduct.

David Wray, president of the Profit Sharing/401(k) Council of America, a nonprofit trade association said the regulations have been set up to protect employee money in 401(k) accounts. Even during the current shake up in financial services companies, he said workers shouldn't worry that their money is at risk.

"The money that is in 401(k) plans is in a trust and it's safe and 401(k) participants can be absolutely 100 percent confident that their money is not threatened by any of the things currently happening," he said.

Assistant Secretary of Labor Bradford P. Campbell, an EBSA executive, said in a statement Monday that retirement plans are safe even when an employer files for bankruptcy protection.

"Federal law requires that pensions, 401(k) plans, and other retirement funds be kept separate from the employer's business assets, so they are secure from the company's creditors," Campbell said. "Exactly what happens in the event of a bankruptcy will depend on the type of benefit plan involved, and whether the employer is reorganizing or liquidating in bankruptcy."

The fall and rise

IT WASN'T JUST A WILD WEEK ON WALL STREET—IT WAS A SCARY ONE.

Monday: The Dow Jones Industrial Average plunges 500 points in the wake of investment bank Lehman Brothers' bankruptcy filing and the abrupt sale of fellow Wall Street powerhouse Merrill Lynch to Bank of America.

Tuesday: The Dow rebounds, gaining 141 points, but investors nervously eye the fate of insurance giant AIG.

Wednesday: The Dow drops nearly 250 points. The government announces it has bailed out AIG with an $85 billion loan in exchange for a nearly 80-percent stake in the company. Taxpayers worry they might have to foot the bill if AIG can't pay off its debt.

Thursday: Finally, a reason to rally: The Dow jumps 410 points on news that the government is preparing a plan to rescue banks from bad debt, though the plan is anything but a certainty.

Friday: The monster rally continues, with the Dow gaining about 370 points. President Bush and Treasury Secretary Henry Paulson outline the framework of a rescue plan for the financial sector.

Sue Redman has used 267-SLYDIAL to avoid talking to the person on the other end of the line. REDEYE PHOTOILLUSTRATION

Evasive action

By Alissa Dos Santos | FOR REDEYE

When a local theater company called Sue Redman about performing in a show, she hesitated to call back. A few mediocre gigs with the group had left her frustrated, she said, so she let herself off the hook—with a phone call that went directly to voice mail. By calling 267-SLYDIAL and then dialing her former employer's phone number, Redman was able to leave a voice mail saying, "I wish I could make it, but ..." without worrying about being talked into taking the gig.

In the age of Facebook News Feeds and Twitter, where intimate details of both personal and professional lives often are just a few mouse clicks or iPhone scrolls away, Slydial is one of a few new technologies that makes it easier for people to shy away from one another—or avoid one-on-one communication altogether. Another relatively new service, nicecritic.com, allows users to send anonymous messages with constructive criticism to co-workers and friends.

For some Chicagoans, services like these offer an outlet to cop out of everyday, face-to-face confrontation.

"It's a lot easier to let someone down on voice mail," said Redman, 26, who lives in Lakeview. "They can't talk back to me, can't ask questions."

Slydial launched July 21 and claims more than 250,000 users. As a free, voice alternative to text messaging, it's little wonder that people are intrigued by the concept, said Jeremy Jensen, 27, of Evanston.

"Everyone's in a big hurry and doesn't have time for a good conversation," Jensen said. Though Jensen said he'd use Slydial to cancel a meeting or perhaps get out of a long conversation with his mom, he admits it seems like a dishonest »

» approach. “You give someone the impression of trying to speak with them, but you really aren’t,” he said.

Sometimes you just don’t want to talk to people, said Streeterville resident Lisa Zickuhr. Zickuhr recalled a friend who recently visited Chicago, but neither Zickuhr nor the friend seemed in the mood to meet up. So Zickuhr sent a text as an easy way out, she said. “She didn’t have to hear my voice, and I didn’t have to hear her disappointment,” said Zickuhr, 22.

But those difficult, in-person conversations are the key to healthy, honest relationships, said psychotherapist Lee Raffel, author of “I Hate Conflict.” “It seems practical, efficient and effective because the information is conveyed quickly,” she said of electronic communication. But in reality, “people are rationalizing that it’s OK to increasingly shy away.”

Ignacio Maldonado, 21, of Pilsen said he agrees that texts aren’t sufficient when he wants to discuss anything important. Inflection, facial expression and body language are lost in e-mails and texts, he said. “I want the face-to-face,” Maldonado said. “I’d want to deal with the issue head on.”

Raffel said Slydial provides little more than what he called immediate gratification. “There’s no waiting, no thinking, no ruminating,” she said. “It’s a superficial type of interaction.”

While Slydial helps feign a phone call, NiceCritic, which also launched in July, hides users’ identities when they send messages. Ranging from a hint at an ear-hair trim to a suggestion to chew softer, more than 200,000 users have used NiceCritic to send anonymous messages, according to founder Erik Riesenber.

From the Web site, people can choose from dozens of notes prewritten to sound as if someone were “saying them in a British accent,” said Riesenber, who doubles as the “nice” scribe. One of the most popular messages, “You have a noticeable post-bathroom stain,” has been sent more than 2,700 times.

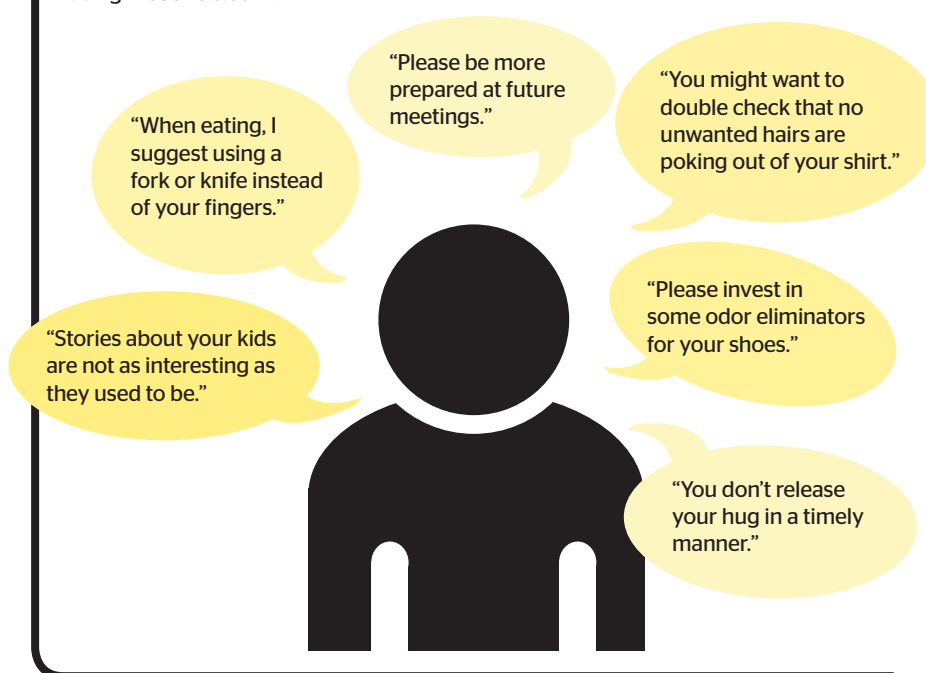

To prevent people from continuously slamming anyone, the same message can’t be sent to the same e-mail address within a 96-hour period. “It’s nothing chronic, something you can fix in three seconds,” Riesenber said. “A breath mint, and you’re done.” Users can also use the site to send “anonymous praise.”

But sending a co-worker an anonymous e-mail suggesting a stronger deodorant could get you in trouble, Lakeview resident Amy Rack said, adding that she wouldn’t send a NiceCritic message. “It would cause more problems long term,” she said. “You’d know it was someone in the office because of the proximity. It’d make that person question everyone around them.”

UCLA psychology professor Gerald Goodman said NiceCritic could provide relief for someone if the recipient of the message changes his or her behavior. The main concern with the service is protecting the sender’s anonymity, he said. Jensen said he would appreciate a heads-up from the faceless NiceCritic. “I’d want to know if I smelled bad or had on too tight of clothing,” he said. “Sometimes people don’t get subtle hints.”

Everybody’s a critic

A sampling of the “constructive criticism” you can send anonymously using nicedritic.com.

Still, this kind of passive-aggressive interaction takes the spontaneity out of relationships, Goodman said. Face-to-face communication allows for impulsiveness, which can lead to healthy disagreements. Slydial could be used to protect a relationship because of the delayed interaction, Goodman said—“You’re hoping that the other person will give you a better response after hearing it”—but nothing replaces looking someone in the eye, said Raffel, who called NiceCritic “horrific” because of its anonymous nature.

“It’s so damn awkward for so many people to face up to their truths and express it to the other person,” she said. While new technologies allow people to delay and avoid that eye-to-eye conversation, it’s the best way to communicate, she said.

Redman, who said she still gets nervous when she uses Slydial, considered using the service when a guy she met at a bar wouldn’t stop texting and calling her. “I wanted to tell him ‘Please, I’m so not interested.’” She ended up denying his Facebook friend request with a quick message and avoided a callback.

Though Redman characterized her Slydial to the theater company a copout, she said it worked out in the end. “I never heard back from them,” she said. “That’s exactly what I wanted.” ALISSA DOS SANTOS IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

It’s a lot easier to let someone down on voice mail. They can’t talk back to me, can’t ask questions.”

SUE REDMAN
on her reason for using Slydial

What do you do?

Your boss has a piece of lettuce in her teeth at lunch. You recently noticed a close friend has bad breath. A co-worker’s feet smell like garbage, you swear. Before you pull a Michael Scott and create an awkward mess (whether you’re in “The Office” or not), take a tip from etiquette expert June Hines Moore, who says proper behavior often falls by the wayside in today’s fast-paced world. Her bottom line? Never try to embarrass anyone. “Make the other person feel comfortable,” she says. “All you want is to get your message across. “Having good manners is like a boomerang. It makes for a happier life.” ALISSA DOS SANTOS

Do ... tell a co-worker she’s talking too loudly in her cubicle.

Moore: Say, “I’m sorry I have to tell you this, but I’m having trouble doing my work. You’re blessed with a very distinctive voice.”

Don’t ... correct a superior or someone above you.

Moore: Resist the urge to tell your boss he has salad stuck between his incisors. Let someone else do that.

Do ... go somewhere public to break up.

Moore: It’s harder if you go to their apartment. Before you start, say you’re on a short deadline and have to be someplace, so you can excuse yourself when she wants to prolong the conversation.

Don’t ... break up over voice mail.

Moore: Never leave a message. That’s cruel. Just come right out and say it. If you have to, use the most common line of them all: “There’s nothing wrong with you, it’s just me and this time in my life.”

Do ... let a friend know he or she has bad breath.

Moore: Back away from the person when you’re with him. If that doesn’t work, get your breath mints out and offer one to him.

Don’t ... say something in an e-mail you wouldn’t say in person.

Moore: You can’t judge a facial expression or the inflection of someone’s voice on e-mail. What you write can be very painful when you don’t mean to be.

Comedian Neil Hamburger hosts the Drunken Spelling Bee Saturday at Hideout.

SPELL IT

Drunken Spelling Bee

Can you spell "Ronald Reagan" in public after tossing back a few shots? How about "paparazzi?" Take a break from the bands at the 12th annual Hideout Block Party (1354 W. Wabansia Ave. 773-227-4433) on Saturday and test your inebriated pop culture spelling skills during comedian Neil Hamburger's Drunken Spelling Bee. While the music fest rages on outside, 60 contestants line up inside to string letters while struggling not to lose their lunch. Signup starts at 3 p.m. All contestants need a designated driver to register. Just want to watch? Hamburger kicks things off at 6 p.m. Traditional spelling bee rules apply—sort of. $5 plus fest admission.

TASTE IT

Half Acre beer tasting

Here's how to get buzzed and support local business at the same time: Test out the latest concoction from Chicago-based Half Acre Brewery on Saturday at Sam's Wines & Spirits (1720 North Marcey St. 312-664-4394) during a tasting of their second official brew, Over Ale. Note to non-beer drinkers: The "warm and malty," brown-colored bitter was made with plenty of malted barley to make it popular with beer nerds and newbies alike.

Half Acre reps will be on hand to take your comments, discuss the progress of the new brewery's construction on Lincoln Avenue and talk about Over Ale and the original Half Acre lager. Tastes of both beers will be available. 1-4 p.m. Free.

TOAST IT

Halfway to St. Patrick's Day

It's almost here, lads and lasses. Emerald waters and green beer pints are only, well, six months away. Celebrate the halfway point to March 17 at Lizzie McNeill's (400 N. McClurg Ct. 312-467-1992) during the Streeterville pub's 5th annual Halfway to St. Patrick's Day Festival. Hit the street out front and partake in $5 Guinness pints, corned beef sandwiches and live music from rockers The Dooley Brothers (Saturday) and Brendan Bruno (Sunday). 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Saturday, 11 a.m.-8 p.m. Sunday. No cover.

EAT IT

Double-cream Brie cupcake

Brie? In a cupcake? Yep, this Jupiter grape-topped creation ($4.25) is one of the newest cakes at week-old cupcake confectioner More (1 E. Delaware Pl. 312-951-0001). The savory pastry is made with a champagne reduction and filled with Brie cheese inside of More's own "sweet cake." Want dessert? Check out the salted caramel cupcake ($3.50), topped with pieces of Hawaiian black lava salt and stuffed with homemade caramel, and keep an eye out for the forthcoming root beer float cupcake ($3.50), iced with root beer-flavored frosting and filled with root beer extract from consulting chef Gale Gand's own supply. If you're drooling, head to the Gold Coast early; on Thursday, More's cupcake stock actually sold out.

LAUNCH IT

"GameFace" guide for women

Attention football-loving ladies: Head to Harry Caray's (33 W. Kinzie St. 312-828-0966) Sunday for the Bears home opener and take part in the book-release party for "GameFace: The Kick-Ass Guide for Women Who Love Pro Sports." Snack on finger food, sip cocktails and receive "team-inspired manicures" while watching the game and thumbing through the book. Authors Erica Boeke and Chris De Benedetti will read selections from "GameFace" and stick around for questions and a booksigning. Includes a GameFace swag bag. RSVP at gogameface.com/booktour. Noon. Cafe con culture

By M. Kathleen Pratt

The spot: The stand-alone corner building where Cafe con Leche Bucktown opened Monday was long a mystery to us. For years, it was Johnny's Snack Shop, a divey grill that kept odd hours and attracted an unusual number of sedans with tinted windows and chrome rims during very specific hours on weekends. Then there was the short-lived Lobos Al Fresco Tacos, a decent little taqueria but a bit of a head-scratcher—this part of town isn't exactly begging for another taco stand.

With Cafe con Leche Bucktown, owner Ulysses Salamanca, who also owns Flash Taco and Underdogg down the street, got it right. It's a spinoff of the Logan Square staple of the same name, though Salamanca is no longer affiliated with that spot. Salamanca's goal is for Cafe con Leche Bucktown to become a gathering place for the neighborhood. Young moms pushing status strollers, bleary-eyed bachelors, harried caffeine fiends, pampered pooches—all are welcome here.

Salamanca went out of his way to make the place inviting. He dropped in a concrete dining counter in front of the grill, replaced an entire wall with glass doors that swing wide open onto the patio, and gave everything a fresh coat of paint, much of it a cheery pastel green.

The food: Cafe con Leche knows its audience. And that is, well, just about everyone who passes this way. From Mexican to American fare to an amalgam of both—witness the chilaquiles ($7), the Meat Lover omelet ($8) and the biscuits with your choice of strawberry jam, Nutella or cajeta ($4)—there's something for everyone.

Grab-and-go fare includes a full complement of breakfast sandwiches ($4-$5), the greasy goodness delivered on either French bread or a croissant. For a more interesting hand-held option, try the torta de chilaquiles ($5), a mini-version of chilaquiles (tortilla chips, house-made salsa, black beans, cheese and sour cream with a sunny side-up egg) on crusty Mexican white bread, or borillo.

Almost everything on the menu clocks in at $8 or less. For $6, the huevos divorciados (literally, "divorced eggs") are a filling breakfast of two fried eggs—one doused in tangy green salsa, the other in spicy red salsa—divided by a row of cheese-topped black beans and tortilla chips. Your best-value option, though, is a breakfast burrito. Though our black bean-, egg- and chorizo-stuffed version lacked textural nuance—a bit of crisp lettuce would have helped cut through the mush—the spicy $7 behemoth must have weighed about a pound, easily enough to feed two.

View from the top

The basics: C-View is the best definition of “a room with a view.” Situated on the 29th floor of the Affinia Hotel, the bar’s panoramic view provides a beautiful backdrop for a date with your sweetie, whether it’s day or night, sunny or cloudy.

Expect to share the space with other couples, hotel guests and Streeterville locals in the know. Inside, leather couches with low-slung candlelit tables beckon, but heaters make the outside deck equally inviting, even in chilly weather. To get a better look at the lake (or a neighboring high-rise), peer through the telescope or binoculars provided for your voyeuristic viewing pleasure.

Noise level: The bar caters to couples and those looking for quiet conversation while taking in the city lights. You’ll notice an upbeat selection of acid jazz tracks, but the volume is unobtrusive enough to take a backseat to your pre-pillow talk.

What to order: If you’re not too intoxicated by the view, choose one of C-View’s rotating signature cocktails, such as the crisp and fruity pineapple mojito ($13), which contains 10 Cane Rum, lime juice and fresh mint, while North Shore vodka and lime-spiked ginger beer combine in The Luka ($13), a modern-day version of a Moscow Mule.

Prefer a margarita or vodka tonic? Ask for an infusion substitution. The C-View crew has concocted batches of Sauza tequila and Svedka vodka infused on-site with fresh citrus, and your bartender will swap ’em in if requested.

Hungry? The menu features mini-portions of dishes crafted by Chef Mark Samuelson for Affinia’s in-house restaurant C-House. Sized for tasting (or feeding your date), the yellowtail appetizer ($5) is a tasty blend of sushi-grade raw yellowtail, served with a house-made tortilla and avocado mousse. Or go the comfort food route with chorizo mac and cheese ($6).

Icebreaker: C-View was once the location of a swimming pool, before the building was renovated. Sorry, Michael Phelps — this spot is now a different kind of watering hole.

Aiming at Dane

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES When Dane Cook was 3, he was attacked—and almost killed, he says—by a German shepherd. Beneath his hair is a zigzagging scar that became etched into his cranium after receiving nearly 80 stitches. Following the disclosure of this “fun fact,” as he coyly calls it, the actor-comedian uses the opportunity to tell a joke.

“Hopefully, someday, I’ll play a James Bond villain,” he says. “I’ll shave my head, so you can see all the ravines.”

Such a role would probably have more bite than Cook’s previous efforts on the big screen. Like as Dennis Rodman’s wisecracking sidekick in the forgettable 1999 action flick “Simon Sez.” Or as a slacker stockboy who falls for a big-eared cashier played by Jessica Simpson in the rom-com “Employee of the Month.” And even as Jessica Alba’s cursed love interest in the sex romp “Good Luck Chuck.”

These days, instead of a German shepherd, it’s film critics who chomp at Cook. The 36-year-old comedian most famous—or infamous, depending on who you ask—for gurgling cultural insights and sexually charged material in front of sold-out crowds has consistently been dubbed unfunny by movie critics, despite his continued commercial success as a stand-up comic.

That may change with his latest effort, the R-rated romantic comedy “My Best Friend’s Girl,” now in theaters. “This is the one where I look at it and think there’s a character and a real evolution with this guy,” Cook says during an interview at the Four Seasons Hotel.

In the movie, Cook plays Tank Turner, an air purifier call-center supervisor by day, anti-Cupid by night. He’s a suave emotional terrorist for hire by freshly dumped guys. For a fee, Tank will subject their ex-girlfriends to the worst date of their lives in hopes they go running back to their respective boyfriends. They usually do.

While this badboy role most closely resembles Cook’s on-stage antics, he’s quick to point out that the goofball who recounts one-night-stands in comedy clubs isn’t really him. And neither is Tank. Cook says he based much of the character on his best friend, comedian Robert Kelly, as well as Johnny Cash and Brain from “Pinky and the Brain.”

“I’m much more introverted and shy, contrary to popular belief,” he says. “Tank is fearless and always on the cusp, taking lewd and lascivious behavior to a whole other level, but he has a heart of gold because he’s ultimately doing this to give people a second chance.”

Tank’s game changes when he meets—all together now—his best friend’s girl, who gnaws through Tank’s bravado after a drunken tryst. The best friend is played by Jason Biggs; Kate Hudson serves as the girl. Alec Baldwin also portrays Tank’s lecherous father.

To prepare for kissing scenes with bombshell leading ladies such as Hudson, Alba and Simpson, Cook says he’s developed a tradition. Before production begins, he nonchalantly asks his co-stars for their favorite flavor of gum or mint. Hudson’s pick? Lifesavers Pep-o-Mint.

“You tend to go back to how you felt when you were in high school,” Cook says. “Even though you’re professional actors, you come to those scenes wondering things like: Are you going to be mad if I kiss you? Do I put my hands on the small of your back or can I go lower? Is that too low? Can you draw a map of where I can touch you?”

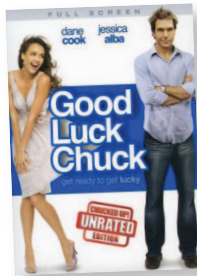

‘Best Friend’s Girl’ gives Cook chance to prove his critics wrong

Cook

WHERE'S THE LOVE?

Movie critics have made “My Best Friend’s Girl” star Dane Cook their pinata over the years. Here are some of the nasty barbs culled from reviews of his recent films on rottentomatoes.com. REDEYE

Employee of the Month (2006)

“Dane Cook plays Zack, the box boy who’s determined to take the prize from 17-time winner Vince (Dax Shepard). I’d tell you more, but that would just prolong the torture. There are people who think Cook is funny, but you won’t find any evidence of that here.”

—PETER TRAVERS,
ROLLING STONE

Mr. Brooks (2007)

“You can’t really fault Dane Cook, in his first serious role, though he overplays his wannabe killer in a particularly ham-fisted fashion.”

—CLAUDIA PUIG,
USA TODAY

Good Luck Chuck (2007)

“Can we finally just admit that Dane Cook isn’t funny? ... ‘Good Luck Chuck’ won’t do [Jessica] Alba’s career any favors. But who knows? By the film’s own harebrained logic, maybe her next co-star will be someone who can actually act.”

LAKEVIEW

(PG-13)

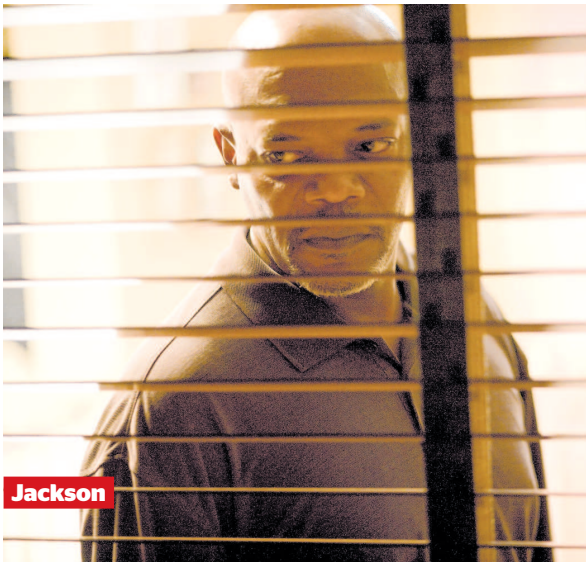

Terror on the terrace

An interracial couple (Patrick Wilson, Kerry Washington) moves into a questionable neighborhood in California, but it's OK because their next-door neighbor is a cop (Samuel L. Jackson). Wait, strike that: The officer doesn't approve of a black woman with a white man and slowly uses escalating passive-aggressive behavior to make his viewpoint clear.

Skip it: A B-movie trying to be seen as more than that, "Lakeview Terrace" accomplishes less by covering racial tension in such a fleeting, superficial manner. As a bonkers third-act leads to a crazy-crazy bang-bang finale, the movie becomes as unhinged as Abel (Jackson).

Bottom line: This is a decent, occasionally exciting action picture, anchored by the increasing distance between Wilson and Washington, and Jackson's eerie methods of friendly intimidation. But by giving Abel a specific reason for his anti-white prejudice, "Lakeview Terrace" takes the ambiguity out of its conflict and the heat out of its fire.

QUICK PICKS

GHOST TOWN (PG-13)

Who's in it: Ricky Gervais, Greg Kinnear

What it's about: A cantankerous dentist can suddenly see dead people. A ghost enlists his help breaking up his widow's impending marriage.

Worth watching? "The slow transformation of both [Gervais' and Kinnear's] characters is what makes the film work." RICK BENTLEY, FRESNO BEE

TOWELHEAD (R)

Who's in it: Summer Bishil, Aaron Eckhart

What it's about: A Lebanese-American teen encounters racism and sexual advances after moving in with her strict dad.

Worth watching? " 'Towelhead' deals in extremes. ... It will give you lots to discuss without necessarily contributing much to the conversation." M.P.

Toronto calls

Toronto
MCT

By Chris Welsch
MINNEAPOLIS STAR TRIBUNE

The problem with writing about Toronto is deciding which Toronto you're going to write about.

Is it the Army-Surplus-Store, hipster mishmash in Kensington Market, where an abandoned car was long ago appropriated as a streetside planter?

Or the Distillery District, where a renovated whiskey factory complex has become the hottest condo-and-shopping development in town?

How about Chinese Toronto? The city has six Chinatowns and several daily Chinese-language newspapers. Is it Greek Toronto?

Must-sees and -dos

» Chinatown should not be missed, but take the visit a step further than dim-sum at the OK Oriental Health Beauty Centre for a $25, hourlong foot massage. Walk-ins welcome.

» Second City's Toronto franchise is still top-notch. "Barack to the Future" opened this month (secondcity.com).

» Even if you don't know who Guy Lafleur is, you shouldn't pass on the Hockey Hall of Fame (hhof.com). It's worth it to see Canadians unabashedly worshipping the Stanley Cup in the cathedral-like space.

Food

» If there is an iconic Toronto food item, it is the back-bacon (also known as pea-meal bacon) sandwich. St. Lawrence Market has three vendors. I tried Carousel Bakery (which serves its version on freshly made buns) and Paddington's Pump, which gives you more meat and condiments. Both were excellent. St. Lawrence also is the place to get Ukrainian pierogi, local cheese, sausage and produce of Italian Toronto? Portuguese Toronto? They're all here.

For a few days I was privileged to travel between Torontos, and sometimes they were right across the street from each other. While I loved the variety, I also marveled at how well the city worked as a whole. The city's core is pedestrian-friendly, safe and, in the truest sense, multicultural. At bars, in restaurants and on the streets, mixed couples and blended groups of friends appeared in numbers that I have not seen in U.S. cities.

Here you'll find a Toronto mosaic, bits and pieces making up a most pleasant whole. (Note: The exchange rate with the Canadian dollar is basically 1-to-1 these days.)

all kinds (stlawrencemarket.com).

» For a taste of upscale Toronto, head to the Distillery District, where you'll find sleek restaurants and cafes, high-end design stores and swanky galleries. Two finds merit special note: The best meal of my trip came at Archeo Trattoria (archeo.ca), which produces rustic Italian cuisine with a few modern twists.

» Save space for dessert at Soma Chocolate-maker, just around the corner. Billed as "A Place to Worship Chocolate," Soma brews up an amazing Mayan hot chocolate that starts rich and smooth and finishes with a burst of cayenne-and-cinnamon fireworks (somachocolate.com).

Getting around

Toronto is Canada's biggest city, but its population is often described as 2.5 million. Don't be fooled. The total metro area is closer to 6 million. Greater Toronto sprawls, but the core is surprisingly compact and very pedestrian-friendly. I traveled mostly by foot, with the subway ($2.75 a ride) my other primary mode of transportation.

Holiday airfare may cost you

Expect to spend more to fly home for the holidays this year, say the experts at Live Search Farecast. Fares for Thanksgiving 2008 are up 31 percent from 2007, while Christmas and New Year's fares are up 30 percent, according to the Web site.

"There are deals out there for both Thanksgiving and Christmas," said Joel Grus, a spokesman for Farecast at farecast.live.com, "but they're few and far between, and won't last long." AP

Russet potatoes were the winner for this chowder during testing at Cook's Country magazine. Instant potato flakes are used to thicken the chowder, but avoid potato granules, which can have an off taste.

LOW-FAT NEW ENGLAND CLAM CHOWDER

Start to finish: 45 minutes

Servings: 6

- >> 2 slices bacon, finely chopped
- >> 1 medium yellow onion, finely chopped
- >> 2 cloves garlic, minced
- >> 1/4 teaspoon dried thyme
- >> 1 pound russet potatoes, peeled and cut into 1/2-inch chunks
- >> 1/4 cup white wine
- >> 2 bay leaves
- >> Four 6 1/2-ounce cans chopped clams, drained and juices reserved
- >> 3/4 cup instant potato flakes
- >> 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- >> 8-ounce bottle clam juice
- >> 3/4 cup fat-free half-and-half
- >> 1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley
- >> Salt and ground black pepper

In a large Dutch oven over medium-low, cook the bacon until browned, about 10 minutes. Add the onion and cook until softened, about another 10 minutes.

Add the garlic and thyme and cook until fragrant, about 30 seconds. Add the potatoes, wine, bay leaves and reserved juice from the clams. Increase heat to medium and simmer until the potatoes are tender, 10 to 12 minutes.

In a medium microwave-safe bowl, whisk together the potato flakes, cornstarch and bottled clam juice. Microwave until mixture is thickened and smooth, about 1 minute.

Stir the potato flake mixture into the pot and simmer until thickened, about 3 minutes.

Add the half-and-half, parsley and chopped clams and cook until heated through, about 2 minutes. Do not let the chowder boil or it will curdle. Discard the bay leaves and season with salt and pepper.

A beautiful mind

The latest single from R&B star Ne-Yo is “Miss Independent,” which celebrates the sex appeal of a woman’s autonomy.

That’s right: a-u-t-o-n-o-m-y.

You’d be forgiven for reading it, on first pass, as “anatomy,” given the state of urban pop music.

But Ne-Yo isn’t like Akon, T-Pain, Lil Wayne and the rest of his chart-topping, “that”-smacking contemporaries—and not only because he’s become an expert at female-empowerment anthems. (His resume includes Rihanna’s “Take a Bow” and Beyonce’s “Irreplaceable.”)

Ne-Yo is also something of a throwback, which he makes clear with the title of his latest album, “Year of the Gentleman.”

Ne-Yo goes old school in proffering heartfelt, melody-rich and, yes, well-mannered music that harks back to a much earlier era. You remember it, when songs were more than mere ring tones and men not only pulled up their wool slacks, they actually wore them and called them that.

“Year of the Gentleman” is a winning album, in large measure because Ne-Yo’s throwback sensibility sounds so refreshing.

The silky-smooth singer-songwriter’s knack for coming up with monster hooks doesn’t hurt, either, as just about every song here sounds like a potential hit, including “Miss Independent,” which is creeping up the charts—and into the hearts and minds of women everywhere.

Ne-Yo celebrates female sexiness more traditionally with the album’s first single, “Closer,” a Top 10 hit in which he sings—over a pulsating Stargate-produced disco beat—of his attraction to a spellbinding woman who “wants to own me, to control me.” It’s an idea of which he’s enamored.

Made of Honor

Dr. McDreamy?

McNiceEnough was more like it to this viewer. But in this romantic comedy about best friends Tom and Hannah, Patrick Dempsey moves from cockiness to uncomfortable need with funny and melancholy appeal. On a work trip to Scotland, Hannah (Michelle Monaghan) meets and falls for Colin. Upended by the news, Tom nevertheless agrees to be the maid of honor. The movie makes pleasing hay of Tom and Hannah’s friendship and where it leads once a rival arrives to mess things up.

Spore

PC and Macintosh

“Spore” is the ultimate sandbox game. It allows players to go nuts designing their own life forms, evolving them step by step from their single-cell stages. The variety is stunning, ranging from cute little big-eyed bunny things to horrors made up of mouths and eyeballs. Like a sandbox, “Spore” has plenty of width and breadth, but not much depth. And that’s fine. It doesn’t feel like an accident. “Spore” is not supposed to be the next “Civilization.” It’s designed to be picked up and played by anyone, and it can be.

Star Wars: The Force Unleashed

Xbox 360, PlayStation 3, Wii

The main selling point of The Force Unleashed is that it lets you play the bad guy. The villain is Darth Vader’s “secret apprentice,” and his job is to hunt down the last of the Jedi. “TFU” is entertaining for most of its eight-hour length; it’s just not the revolutionary title that will win over “Star Wars” skeptics.

Dirty Sexy Money

A filthy rich family’s lawyer (Peter Krause) tries to untangle their NYC mix-ups while solving his father’s death in the ABC series full of kinky soap fun. The best of all the extras in this three-disc set is a profile of transgender series star Candis Cayne (who plays Billy Baldwin’s girlfriend). The new season begins Oct. 1 on ABC.

The Love Guru

Mike Myers’ return to live action is no “Shrek.” Myers still hasn’t figured out how to share the screen with others. Perhaps he thought playing a self-absorbed guru played to this weakness. Romany Malco (“Weeds”) is a star hockey player in need of a love intervention after his wife takes up with a goalie. Myers’ love of hockey comes through here, but his grasp of spiritual satire is flat.

Speed Racer

After creating a blockbuster sci-fi trilogy with “The Matrix” flicks, the Wachowski brothers stumbled badly with this costly flop that blends live-action and candy-colored computer animation for a big-screen update of the TV cartoon show. Emile Hirsch stars in the title role, a driving prodigy who tries to salvage the family business and bring honor back to the corrupt auto-racing circuit by competing in a hazardous road tournament.

Chinatown fire

Firefighters battle a blaze Friday at the Chinese-American Museum of Chicago in the city's Chinatown neighborhood. There were no reports of injuries, and a museum board member says nothing of great value was destroyed by the fire. It apparently began Friday afternoon in a third-story storage area of the four-story building, which is more than 100 years old. The fire department responded to the fire around 2 p.m., about a half hour after it closed, and were able to extinguish it quickly. ABEL URIBE/TRIBUNE

'Bud Building' must show ad at Wrigley, judge rules

A Cook County Circuit Court judge Friday granted the temporary restraining order that Anheuser-Busch requested against the owners of the "Budweiser Building," who had covered the well-known, painted beer ad on a roof across the street from Wrigley Field with a brown tarp.

The ruling means the owners cannot interfere if Anheuser-Busch wants to remove the tarp covering its ad, which is easy to spot during Cubs broadcasts.

Blagojevich sends warning to Obama

Chicago Tribune

Democratic Gov. Blagojevich warned home-state presidential contender Barack Obama he is falling into a Republican trap by siding against the governor in a battle over ethics legislation that is dominating state politics.

Blagojevich's aggressive fundraising is the target of the original ethics bill, which was overwhelmingly supported by Democrats and Republicans alike in the state legislature. It would prohibit state contractors and those seeking state business worth $50,000 or more from donating to the official who doles out the work. The governor rewrote the bill to include a variety of side issues and critics charge Blagojevich's move was an attempt to sabotage the original measure.

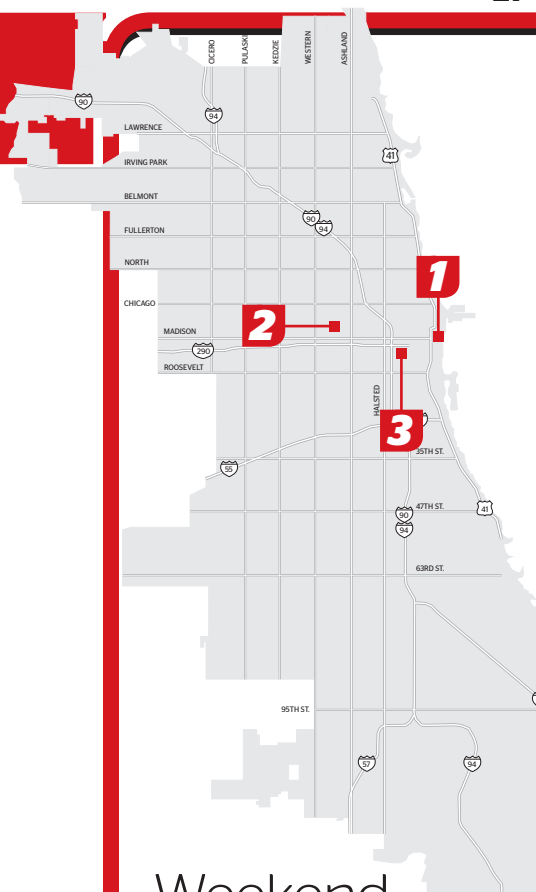

On Thursday, Senate President Emil

Jones said he bowed to a request from Obama and agreed to call senators into session next week to consider an override of Blagojevich's changes, which the House has previously done. Obama was trying to forestall a home-state controversy involving Jones, his political godfather, from becoming an issue on the national campaign trail.

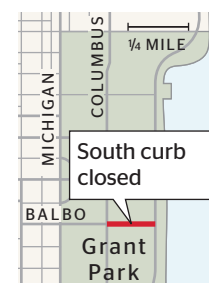

But on Friday, Blagojevich said John McCain can now blast Obama for supporting a weaker ethics reform plan than the one Blagojevich proposed.

"I think what happened here is a very clever ruse by the McCain campaign and by the Republicans," Blagojevich said.

"Let me be clear: I don't think [Obama] should be asked to be involved in any of this. He's busy running for president," the governor said.

Wall Street bailout

WASHINGTON The Bush administration sketched out a multi-faceted effort on Friday to confront the worst U.S. financial crisis in decades, outlining a program that could cost taxpayers hundreds of billions of dollars to buy up bad mortgages and other toxic debt. Relief washed over Wall Street with a surge of buying.

President Bush, flanked by Treasury Secretary Henry Paulson and Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke, acknowledged that the program will put a "significant amount of taxpayers' money on the line."

Paulson gave few details but said he would work through the weekend with leaders of Congress from both parties to flesh out the program, the biggest proposed government intervention in financial markets since the Great Depression.

Members of the Senate Banking Committee said they had yet to receive details of the proposal but were ready to move quickly when they do.

Before the markets opened Friday, the government announced plans to temporarily insure money-market deposits and to block short-selling in financial securities. Short selling is a trading method that bets the stocks will go down.

Speaking to reporters at the Treasury Department, Paulson said the new troubled-asset relief program he wants Congress to enact will include mortgage giants Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac stepping up their purchases of mortgage-backed securities to help provide support to the crippled housing market.

He also said the Treasury Department will expand a program, announced earlier this month, to buy mortgage-backed securities, which have been badly hurt by the housing and credit crises.

Chief gameday buddy?

People would rather watch a football game with Barack Obama than with John McCain—but by barely the length of a football. Obama was the pick over McCain by a narrow 50 percent to 47 percent, according to an Associated Press-Yahoo News poll released Friday.

Crash rattles L.A.

An out-of-service bus driven by a mechanic turned abruptly into a light rail train near downtown L.A. during the morning rush Friday, injuring at least 14 people and rattling commuters a week after a deadly train crash in a suburb. The track reopened about three hours after the crash.

Milk crisis widens

China's tainted milk crisis widened Friday after tests found the industrial chemical melamine in liquid milk produced by three of the country's leading dairy companies, the quality watchdog said. Tainted baby formula has been blamed for killing four infants in China since last week.

Baseball MVP divorces

It's over for A-Rod and his wife of more than five years. With a prenuptial agreement in place, lawyers for the couple confirmed Friday that a settlement was reached less than three months after Cynthia Rodriguez first filed for divorce from New York Yankees star Alex Rodriguez. Terms were not disclosed.

The $1.8 million "time eater" clock, unveiled Friday at Corpus Christi College in Cambridge, England, has no hands or digital numbers, and it is specially designed to slow down or speed up from time to time. Inventor John Taylor built the clock as a tribute to John Harrison, who in 1725 invented the grasshopper escapement that is at the heart of mechanical watchmaking. AP PHOTO

Sutton's up

Wildcats running back talks bruises, ballet and Bears

By Michael Hines

FOR REDEYE

While most of Chicagoland was stuck in place during last weekend's storm, Northwestern running back Tyrell Sutton revved up to top speed in the Wildcats' rain-drenched 33-7 victory over Southern Illinois at Ryan Field.

"I love playing in that kind of weather," the senior from Akron, Ohio, told RedEye a few days after he racked up 101 rushing yards and three touchdowns. "It brings back childhood memories of going outside and playing in the mud."

As NU prepared for this week's game against Ohio, Sutton slowed down long enough to chat with RedEye about absorbing hits, taking ballet class and why he can't listen to music before games.

MICHAEL HINES IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

What's the biggest hit you've ever taken?

Wisconsin my sophomore year.

What happened?

I don't know. I don't remember. Concussion. It was on the second play of the game, and the next thing you know, I'm asking, "How did we get to Wisconsin?"

How does your body feel the morning after a game?

My body feels pretty good. It may hurt a little bit, but at the same time I'm proud of it. I'm taking hits, I'm giving hits. Strangely, it feels good.

Your team bio says you took ballet classes. When was that?

I think I was in the sixth or seventh grade. ... At first, I thought it would be pretty stupid, but it turned out to be pretty fun.

Did it help you as an athlete?

It helps a lot with balance. You have to do a lot of things on your toes or on your heels. It definitely makes you learn to function on your feet.

What kind of music do you listen to before games?

I don't listen to music now. I just got rid of my CD player, and then I broke my mp3 player, so now I got nothing. ... But it's usually Eminem or Jay-Z or T.I. or DMX, some of that loud stuff. Some rock 'n' roll, too, because it's really noisy and it kind of annoys me and it gets me mad.

Have you adopted any Chicago sports teams?

Not really. I'm a Bears fan because of [former Northwestern linebacker] Nick Roach.

What's your favorite sport to watch?

"SportsCenter." I can't watch whole games. It gets boring to me sometimes. I definitely can't watch baseball—that's the most boring sport to me. I can't watch soccer. I just like seeing highlights. I don't sit around and watch too many sports.

How did you pick Northwestern?

There wasn't much to pick. I wasn't highly recruited coming out of high school. It was an underdog school. You get the best of both worlds here with academics and Big Ten football, so it was a no-brainer.

NU is 3-0 for the first time since '01. You thinking bowl game?

No, we can't think about that. That's how teams lose focus. We have to concentrate on prepping for the next game, for Ohio. You start thinking about that, you start getting too far in advance and you forget what's important. Right now, what's important is getting great prep work for Ohio and taking it day by day.

WEEKEND TV GUIDE

BASEBALL

White Sox at Kansas City

6:10 p.m. Saturday, WGN;
1:10 p.m. Sunday, CSN

Sox baseball is required viewing from here on out people. I don't want to hear any of this "But there's a 'Mad Men' marathon on" nonsense.

BASEBALL

Cubs vs. St. Louis

2:55 p.m. Saturday, Fox;
1:20 p.m. Sunday, WGN

One of these games could be the playoff clincher, not that you've ever needed an excuse to run through the streets naked and screaming.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

LSU vs. Auburn

6:45 p.m. Saturday, ESPN

It's the Tigers vs. the Tigers. Rumor has it that LSU's flying in the Detroit Tigers, Tiger Woods, Hobbes and the original Broadway cast of "Cats" to make a true party out of this.

NFL

Bears vs. Tampa Bay

Noon Sunday, Fox

No doubt the Bears have been working hard to craft more plays that won't work on 3rd-and-1. (Sigh.)

NFL

Green Bay vs. Dallas

7:15 p.m. Sunday, NBC

I grant you permission to root for Dallas just this once, but, please, for everyone's health, take a shower afterward.

Reality bites

This week we present to you a lineup of all fictional characters: Bag Dog, Evil Supercomputer, Leo Ebersole, Jimmy Greenfield and "That Guy." Join us: redye.chicago.com/ facebookfives.com/

TOPIC	BAG DOG redeyesports@tribune.com	LEO EBERSOLE lebersole@tribune.com	'THAT GUY' redeyesports@tribune.com	JIMMY GREENFIELD jgreenfield@tribune.com	EVIL SUPERCOMPUTER redeyesports@tribune.com
1 How are you getting ready for the Bears' home opener?	Just dug up my old Brian Griese jersey from the back yard. Gonna chew on it a while.	I'm thinking about switching to satellite TV.	Coiffing my chest hair, dyeing it orange.	By doing stomach crunches while eating bratwurst.	Just changing Tampa Bay's hotel reservations to the middle lanes of the Dan Ryan.
2 The Bears are only No. 12 on espn.com's "ultimate" NFL franchise rankings. What gives?	Apparently espn.com graciously chose to ignore the last 15 seasons.	I don't know, but Mike Ditka is giving some Web administrator a serious wedgie right now.	Was I happy being named No. 5 on Cosmo's list of skeevi-est men alive? Deal with it.	This is clearly an error. They're no better than No. 16.	Factoring in strength of schedule, I had them just behind Southeast Missouri State.
3 The White Sox need our help to make the playoffs. What are you prepared to do?	Lead me to the Minnesotan's leg and I will pee on it.	I'm willing to send Ozzie Guillen as many Red Bulls as he needs.	Will it get me chicks? Sorry, that's my standard response to any favor.	FOOD FIGHT!	Rig the hat game on the Twins' Jumbotron. DIABOLICAL!
4 Finish this sentence: When Europeans take on Americans in golf Asia and Africa can sleep better at night knowing they're not wasting our time.	... only one half of the available shower stalls are used.	Sorry, fell asleep. I heard "Europeans" and "golf" in the same sentence.	... Americans turn the channel.	... they'll all be too busy to notice me signing up for Netflix with their credit card numbers.
5 How is the uncertain economy affecting your sports habit?	The University of Georgia just asked me if I'd be their mascot for free.	Instead of paying for a pricey therapist, I like to scream at the TV during Washington Nationals games.	You mean picking up chicks? I no longer tell girls I'm a banker at Merrill.	I've stopped sending Ryan Theriot his $10 weekly allowance.	It has made human misery soooooo passe. I need a good robot invasion to cheer me up.

Enter a number between 1 and 9 in the empty squares. The clues are the numbers in the white circles that give the sum of the solution numbers: above the line are across clues; below the line are down clues. Thus, a clue of 3 will produce a solution of 2 and 1, and a 5 will produce 4 and 1, or 2 and 3, but, of course, which squares they go in will depend on the solution of a clue in the other direction. No digit can be repeated in a solution. Answer at redyechicago.com/answers.

NBC

Welcome to the 'Rock'

Tina Fey's '30 Rock' is giving viewers plenty to discuss

The premiere of NBC's "30 Rock" seems like it's ages away, but already the show's cast has people talking. Tina Fey and Alec Baldwin have been in the news lately for comments surrounding the sitcom, and a certain guest appearance announcement has drawn its fair share of attention. Added to that is the possibility of another highly buzz-worthy guest, which has basically cemented the show's place in the gossip rags from now until its online premiere Oct. 23. Despite the fact that fresh episodes aren't due for, like, ever, we couldn't help but seize the opportunity to talk about why people are talking about the show right now. It's time to dust off RedEye's handy, dandy Buzz-O-Meter.

TINA FEY

THE NEWS: Fey dropped in on her old "Saturday Night Live" pals last weekend to parody Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin, whom she closely resembles.

THE SIGNIFICANCE:

The highly anticipated cameo rocketed Fey, the person around whom "30 Rock" revolves, to the front lines of the gossip world's consciousness.

BUZZ-WORTHINESS: 5

ALEC BALDWIN

THE NEWS: Baldwin recently started a feud with Greg Garcia, the head honcho at "My Name Is Earl." The show's star, Jason Lee, joked that he and Baldwin were conspiring to get publicity for the show.

THE SIGNIFICANCE:

Baldwin says "jump" and the media ask, "How high?" His mere presence on "30 Rock" gives it that extra kick.

BUZZ-WORTHINESS: 4

WILL ARNETT

THE NEWS: The former "Arrested Development" standout is slated to appear again in his Emmy-nominated role as the slimy Devon Banks, according to E! Online.

THE SIGNIFICANCE:

Arnett's appearances have freshened up the show in the past. Could lightning strike again?

BUZZ-WORTHINESS: 4

JENNIFER ANISTON

THE NEWS: The reigning queen of sitcom comedy (and apparently doomed relationships) has a cameo. She reportedly appears as a "Fatal Attraction"-like stalker from Chicago!

THE SIGNIFICANCE:

NBC seemed content to milk rumors that Aniston was appearing on the show for a while before actually confirming them.

BUZZ-WORTHINESS: 4

OPRAH WINFREY

THE NEWS: Not long after the Aniston rumor was confirmed, "30 Rock" officially booked the queen of talk to also appear on the show. Awesome!

THE SIGNIFICANCE:

When Oprah's on board with something, isn't half of America? If "30 Rock" were a book, this would be like O putting it on her book club list.

BUZZ-WORTHINESS: 5

'Sex' sequel not a done deal yet

Parker

Sarah Jessica Parker says a "Sex and the City" movie sequel will only happen if the writers can do it justice.

"It's all about the story," Parker told usmagazine.com at Thursday's DVD release party in New York. "If we can't tell a story that's really worthy of an audience, then we won't do it."

She said she and writer Michael Patrick King will "have that conversation sooner rather than later," and added: "We've been in people's good graces for a long time, and we take that very seriously."

Still, her co-stars have ideas for how a sequel might unfold.

Cynthia Nixon, who plays Miranda Hobbes, says she "would love to see [Miranda] and Carrie and Charlotte and Samantha all go off on some wild mad cap adventure somewhere."

You gonna eat that?

Hilton

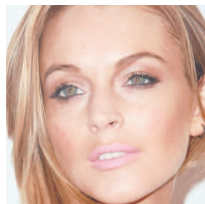

Paris Hilton's dogs may be many things, but they're not coyote food.

A rep for the heiress shot down Web rumors that Hilton had been distraught because two of her dogs were eaten by a coyote.

"They were at Paris' house Wednesday in her recording studio, and all the dogs were playing and looked as healthy and happy as can be," the rep told People magazine. "Paris even had a doggie mansion built for them and it is very [secure]."

LiLo's fashion sense

Lohan

When the next season of "Project Runway" debuts on Lifetime in January, Lindsay Lohan might be in the guest judge's chair, TV tabloid "Access Hollywood" is reporting.

Lohan reportedly filmed next season's premiere episode Thursday, "Access" said. Seal, husband of "Project Runway" host Heidi Klum, told usmagazine.com Klum was in the first day of filming the show Thursday night.

Holmes and Cruise
GETTY IMAGES FILE

TomKat's big night

Katie Holmes made her Broadway debut Thursday night, but Tom Cruise might have been the star of the show.

Moments before the curtain went up on the first preview performance of "All My Sons," Cruise entered the theater and the crowd gasped audibly, the AP reports. He shook some hands, then hugged his "Rain Man" co-star Dustin Hoffman, which, somehow, drew applause.

So what about Holmes' performance? She called it "fine." Cruise called it "extraordinary."

The audience apparently agreed with Cruise. Holmes received a standing ovation.

HOT DATE

Dec. 9: The date 50 Cent's new album, "Before I Self Destruct," will be released, just a week ahead of Kanye West's "808's and Heartbreak" on Dec. 16, according to billboard.com. Looks like 50 Cent is getting a head start on a showdown sequel. Last year, West's "Graduation" outsold 50 Cent's "Curtis" in the two albums' debut week.

1 High anxiety

Well it goes without saying that everybody's on edge about the economy. Today, Donald Trump announced he's downgrading to ruby-encrusted boxers.

2 Cutting back

I don't want to say times are tough just yet, but the big showcase showdown prize on "The Price Is Right" is now an autographed New Kids on the Block CD and some discarded Taco Bell wrappers.

3 All the trimmings

Of course, the dominant news unfolding right now is the playoff push the Cubs and White Sox are making. Well, "dominant" until Sarah Palin gets her next haircut.

4 Mario smash!

You know how anger triggers the Incredible Hulk? It's the same thing with heels and "Sex and the City's" Mario Cantone.

5 You are the father

This week's baby daddy drama put "90210" back on the pop culture radar. Next week's special guest: Maury Povich.

6 Alone time

Luke Wilson will star in an indie movie about the birth of online porn—a project Hollywood will monitor with great interest right after its parents leave for work.

7 Bravo

Tom Cruise called Katie Holmes' first Broadway performance "extraordinary," adding he hasn't seen such emotion from his wife since he first handcuffed her to a banister and told her he loved her.

8 Is this thing on?

Europe's much-hyped Hadron atom collider was disabled this week by a broken transformer. Calls have been placed with Optimus Prime's agent.

9 Um ...

Asked by a BET interviewer if he liked teenage girls, R. Kelly said, "How old are we talking?" The "thud" heard shortly after that was his lawyers' heads hitting their desks.
